Kim Haney-Brown is a Senior Consultant and Program Manager for Organization Development, Leadership, and Executive Coaching Programs at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). A practitioner at heart, Kim's experience for the past 18 years encompasses organizational learning, executive coaching, organization development, facilitation, and leadership effectiveness in diverse environments. She currently works at NASA Headquarters in Washington, D.C. Kim's extensive portfolio at NASA Headquarters includes coaching and managing a coaching program that consists of internal/external coaches who provide targeted services to leaders and senior executives.

In her role at NASA Headquarters, Kim has led a variety of high profile special projects, including collaborative lead and strategist for the Federal Employee Viewpoint Survey which measures Best Places to Work in the Federal Government® (NASA ranked #1 in 2012, 2013, 2014). She has served at three NASA centers in various leadership capacities, including Oversight Manager of the NASA Management Education Center; Team Lead for Organization Development, Leadership, and Special Projects; Acting Director of the Career Management Division; and Acting Training Officer.

Throughout Kim's career, she has received 30+ awards, including several special act recognition awards and the John S. Brennan Award for Academic Excellence. She is a member of the Organization Development Network, the Chesapeake Bay Organization Development Network, the American Psychological Association (graduate affiliate), Society for Industrial Organizational Psychologists (graduate affiliate), Kappa Gamma Pi, and Psi Chi (Honor Society in Psychology).

Kim earned a Master of Science, cum laude, in Applied Behavioral Science from The Johns Hopkins University (Baltimore, Maryland) and a Bachelor of Science, cum laude, in Business Administration from Regis University (Denver, Colorado). Kim is currently in the dissertation phase of completing a Ph.D. in Organizational Psychology at Walden University. She completed the "Business and Organizational Coaching Program" in 2005 at Newfield Network with a cohort of NASA employees. She also completed the "Social and Emotional Intelligence Coach Certification Program" at the Institute for Social + Emotional Intelligence® (ISEI).

Kim enjoys life and thrives on positive energy. She is married to Dwayne C. Brown, Senior Communications Specialist for science at NASA. She delights in playing the piano, spending time with family, attending the theater, and international travel.
